Kids turn out to hunt for prizes

By Benjamin S. Rossi

There could not have been a more beautiful day for Wilmore's annual Easter-egg hunt at Centennial Park on Saturday, parks and recreation director Amy Fitch said.

Dozens of children, from infants to 10-year-olds, convened at the park located behind the Ichthus grounds to meet the Easter Bunny and search for hidden treasure in the grass.

"I'm just out here with my granddaughter," Wilmore Mayor Harold Rainwater said. "I try to come out here every year; it really is a nice event, beautiful day, and Amy just does an amazing job."

With only a few white puffy clouds in the sky, Fitch and Rainwater both agreed conditions could not be better but that there were fewer children than in year's past.

"I think it has something to do with spring break," Fitch said. "A lot of them are out traveling with their fami-

When officers arrived and declared their presence, two of the subjects fled on foot toward Walmart with officers in pursuit. When they fled, they allegedly abandoned their burglary tools, which were recovered by police. Officers pursued the two male subjects into the parking lot and found them hiding together in a portable toilet 15 minutes later. Jeremy J. Young, 22, and Marcus Anderson, 20, were arrested and charged with first-degree criminal mischief, possession of burglary tools and second-degree fleeing or evading police.

New district lines affect most voters

Congressional shuffle results in miniscule voting precincts, among other changes

By Benjamin S. Rossi
brossi@jessaminejournal.com

The newly drawn U.S. congressional-district lines have forced a change that will affect more than 20,000 voters in the upcoming primary and general elections, Jessamine County Clerk Eva McDaniel said.

"Our county now has two congressional districts; that's very unusual," McDaniel said. "Half the county is now split."

Gov. Steve Beshear signed House Bill 302 into law in mid-February, which keeps most of county in Democratic Rep. Ben Chandler's 6th District but puts the western side, including Wilmore, in Republican Rep. Brett Guthrie's 2nd District.

The redistricting will mostly affect registered voters in the county's northwestern-area precincts where the 2nd

Congressional District line zigzags south, splitting Jessamine with the 6th District to the east, McDaniel said.

The redrawn lines also add a new precinct, the 38th, to the county this year which has only one registered voter living in it.

"You can't cross over magisterial lines, congressional lines, and in this case, school-board lines," McDaniel said. "It's a big puzzle that we have to put together."

Redistricting happens every 10 years after the state census, McDaniel said, and since the last lines were drawn up, nearly 10,000 more people are registered to vote in the county.

McDaniel said her election staff in the county clerk's office had been working since Jan. 2 and, after many changes and suggestions, the new precinct maps were finalized March 22 by state legislators in Frankfort.

In all, there are six districts with five to nine precincts in each

Highbridge Film Fest hits screen April 21

Journal staff report
news@jessaminejournal.com

The Highbridge Film Festival is returning to Asbury University at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 21.

Every year since 2005, 12-15 festival film selections are chosen from dozens of entries by a festival acceptance committee made up of faculty from the Asbury University media-communication department.

The committee receives entries from Asbury University students and from high-school students, many of whom may be future Asburians.

The selected films are screened for audience members in Hughes Auditorium and judged by film-industry professionals, with prizes awarded for technical and narrative skills.

“We wanted to give students an opportunity to develop the craft of storytelling,” said co-founder and Asbury University professor Greg Bandy. “Movies are like music and athletics; you have to practice it, and you have to keep doing it. Providing that opportunity was at the core of what we wanted to do.”

In its inaugural year, the festival was held in a gym that could only seat 400, but this year's is expected to have nearly 1,500 with tickets for $5.

“Having a film in Highbridge has allowed me to see what all is required for making a film,” said Tessa Carroll, whose work “The Long and the Short of It” played in the 2011 festival. “If you want it to be memorable and thought-provoking, then you have to put a lot of thought and time into it ... (making movies) is incredibly challenging, especially when you can't see the results until months later.”

The festival wraps up in a formal reception where audience members can meet the filmmakers, faculty, judges and special guests in the Andrew S. Miller Center for Communication Arts at 9:30 p.m.

JCHD to offer ‘Strong Women’ program

Beginning April 17, the Jessamine County Health Department (JCHD) will offer a new session of “Strong Women,” a free 12-week moderate-intensity exercise program for women aged 50 and over.

Strong Women is designed to improve the health and well-being of middle-aged and older women by building strong bones and muscles and increasing balance and flexibility.

According to developers of the Strong Women program at Tufts University, the benefits of strength training for women aged 50 and above include:

- Increased muscle mass and strength
- Improved bone density and reduced risk for osteoporosis and related fractures
- Reduced risk for diabetes, heart disease, arthritis, depression and obesity

- Improved self-confidence, sleep and vitality

“Because the program decreases the risk of osteoporosis, it is especially popular among women aged 50 and over,” JCHD regional epidemiologist and Strong Women-certified trainer Kylie Chilton said. “Eighty percent of the approximately 10 million Americans who have osteoporosis are women, and one in two women will experience an osteoporosis-related fracture.”

Strong Women classes will be held every Tuesday and Thursday from 10-11 a.m. at the Jessamine County Health Department, 215 E. Maple St., in Nicholasville. No registration is required; light weights and exercise mats will be provided. For more information, call 859-885-4149, ext. 1033.

State foots bill for resurfacing

By Benjamin S. Rossi
brossi@jessaminejournal.com

Jessamine County Fiscal Court has approved two recommendations by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet's Highway Department for the use of state-allotted funds of more than $450,000 to improve Ashgrove Pike and Little Hickman Road in fiscal year 2013.

"These are recommendations that come from our engineer who drives around, knows the road's conditions, knows the traffic volume that's carried on it and knows the last time it's been resurfaced," said Brett Blair, a representative of the cabinet's District 7 office. "We also have a central maintenance group out of Frankfort that comes out and rates these roads."

The two rural roads in the county highlighted in Blair's recommendation have both been classified as in "poor" condition, which is the lowest grade. The grade identifies the road as in serious need of bituminous resurfacing, a sealing coat to rejuvenate asphalt.

The funds will come from the state's Rural Secondary Program and a flex account, which is 20 percent of the state's calculated allotment.

Rural secondary roads' primary function are as a farm-to-market route, Blair said. For example, Brannon Road used to be classified as a rural secondary route until heavier traffic between Nicholasville Road and Harrodsburg Road bumped it up in status to state secondary.

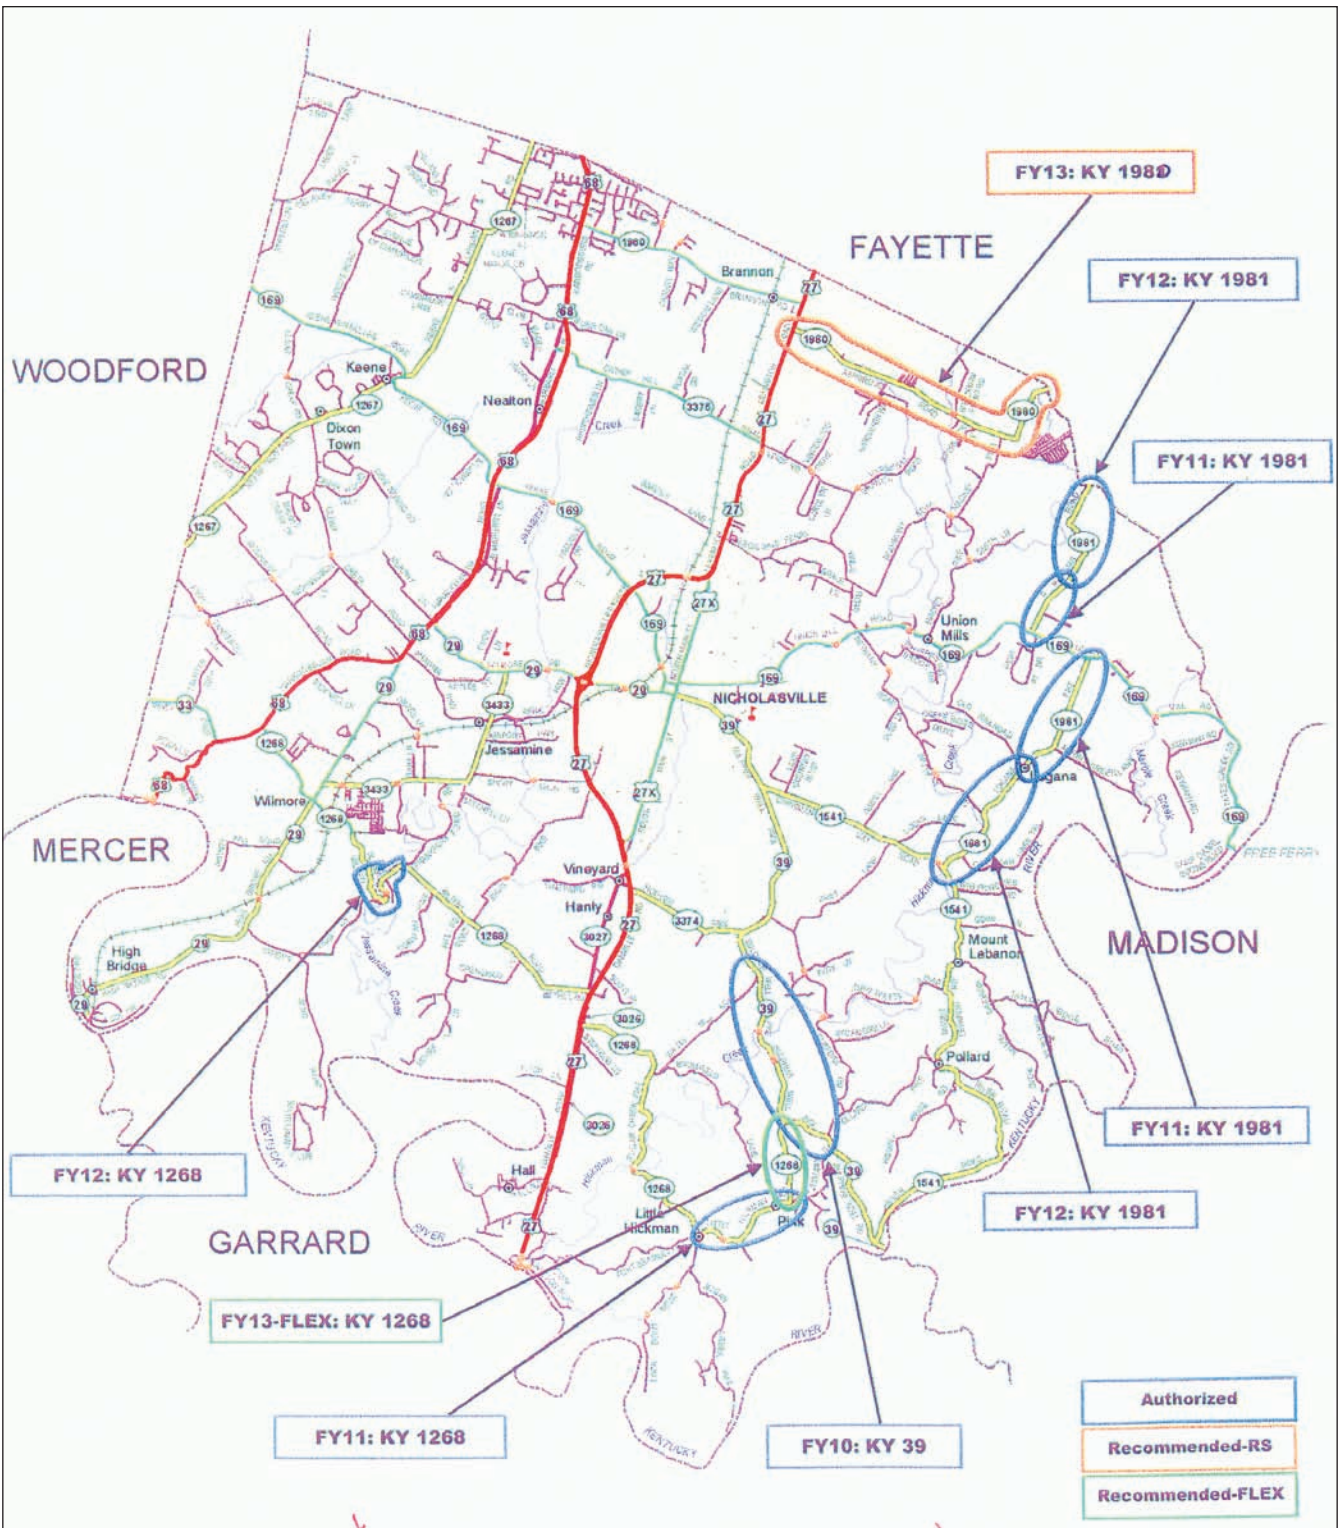

Jessamine County has a total of 59.029 rural secondary miles, which is down from FY12, Blair said.

That lower mile number is a good thing since it also drops the estimated resurfacing cycle down for the county from 13-20 years to 10-15 years, he said. This means it could take 15 years with the regular allotments, or only 10 years with the use of flex funds, to resurface all of the county's rural secondary roadways.

Blair said that 10-15 years is on par with the state's recommended amount of time between resurfacing of rural roads.

In FY13, Jessamine County is allotted $367,748, which can only be spent on rural roads, Blair said.

But there is also $170,799 in the flex account, which can be spend on rural or county roads — a total of $538,547 in FY13 for improvements.

GRAPHIC SUBMITTED

The blue circled routes are previously resurfaced rural roads from FY10-12.

The first recommendation for the FY13 resurfacing project is Ky. 1981, better known as Ashgrove Pike, and is estimated to cost $367,000.

The last resurfacing of the 4.246 miles from U.S. 27 to Ky. 1974 was done in 1997. This initial cost will eat up nearly all of the project allotments but does not include the flex fund.

The flex account can be spent at the fiscal court's discretion for roadway improvements, but Blair recommended the fiscal court resurface the 1.364-mile stretch of Ky. 1268 or Little Hickman Road.

The resurfacing will go from Ky. 39 to Brumfield Lane and was last resurfaced in 1996. Other work was done on Little Hickman Road from Sugar Creek Pike in FY11.

The cost of this resurfacing will come out of the flex funds available, $170,799, but Blair said he expects it to be only half of that.

"We're basically coming to (the fiscal court) and saying this is what we need, $90,000, and the rest can be used on county roads," Blair said. "But it's up to you; the governor gave (the flex fund) up to the judge and his fiscal court."

Jessamine County Judge-

Executive Neal Cassity signed the agreement April 3 to move forward with the Ashgrove project and spend $90,000 on Little Hickman Road with an addendum to use the leftover flex money on county roads in need of bituminous resurfacing.

Those county roads have not yet been determined by the fiscal court.

Schools changing leadership structure

By Jonathan Kleppinger
jkleppinger@jessaminejournal.com

The Jessamine County school district will reorganize its leadership after current deputy superintendent Owens Saylor leaves this summer to assume the superintendency in Daviess County.

Superintendent Lu Young presented the board of education with her proposed changes at Monday night's work session. Saylor was announced as the superintendent in Owensboro on March 26.

The new system in Jessamine County would have three "chiefs" who would essentially be assistant superintendents, Young said, and could serve as superintendent's designees. The district had three assistant superintendents and then two assistant superintendents before Saylor became deputy superintendent.

In Young's plan, Saylor's old position would morph into "chief of staff" and remain responsible for areas such as athletics, transportation, food service and health services, in addition to central-office staff. Paul Hamann's post of chief operating officer would remain the same with the addition of finance responsibilities, and the new position of chief academic officer would go to the current director of curriculum, Kathy Fields, with a few changes.

The alterations would result in no net change to the staffing salaries, Young said. She said the only "open" position — chief of staff — would be posted soon.

"We'll be posting it probably on Friday and looking at all the applications that come in, although I do think we'll have some strong in-district candidates," she said.

City gets grant to build dam

By Mike Moore
mmoore@jessaminejournal.com

Flooding in downtown Nicholasville could soon be a thing of the past after the Nicholasville City Commission authorized Mayor Russ Meyer to sign a grant agreement for the Riney-B dam project during Monday's meeting.

"This is pretty big news for us," the mayor said. "The dam in Riney-B will keep our downtown from flooding like it did a couple years ago."

The grant, from the Kentucky Department for Local Government, will provide $1,177,809 for the project.

Officials said this is a much-needed project because whenever torrential rains fall, the downtown portion of Nicholasville is prone to flooding. The most recent case occurred in May 2010, when rains caused heavy flooding along 2nd Street.

The lack of retention near a section of Town Branch Creek in Riney-B Park is the main culprit, Nicholasville streets superintendent Gary Goldey said. He said when heavy rains fall, water runs off property at the park and into lower-lying roads and the creek.

"There's no retention through that whole branch that comes through that area," he said. "It comes down through the Brookview (Drive) and Meadowlark (Lane) area after it leaves the Riney-B property, and then it comes under the railroad and it hits down here on 2nd Street."

The grant process began in July 2011 when the city commission teamed up with the Jessamine County Fiscal Court to obtain a grant to build a storm-water control dam within Riney-B Park.

That required more than 400 Jessamine County families to be surveyed over a three-week period (July 11-29). City and county employees visited the homes of those randomly selected.

A Jessamine County ambulance encountered high water on 2nd Street after flooding in May 2010. The city is planning a dam at Riney-B Park.

Meyer said without the efforts of city and county employees, there would be no grant.

"It came down to the people who got out on the ground and went door-to-door, and it would have happened without them," Meyer said. "All the hard work paid off."

In addition to city and county employees, Bluegrass Area Development District also helped in the application process, Meyer said.

According to a letter from the department for local government, grant stipulations include:

- the city will accept the funding level referenced and bear all cost overruns.
- the city must advertise bids for six months from the date of the fully executed grant agreement and the project must be completed by June 30, 2015.
- the city cannot advertise for bids until granted an environmental clearance from the department for local government.

Meyer said there is no specific timeline on when work will start, adding that the city is waiting for the department of local government to release the money.

"Once they release the money, we can get the final design done and move forward with the project," he said.

Curry Services awarded cemetery-mowing contract

By Mike Moore
mmoore@jessaminejournal.com

The Nicholasville City Commission accepted the bid of Nicholasville-based Curry Services for the mowing of Maple Grove Cemetery during Monday's meeting.

The bid came in at $1,685 per week, city purchasing agent Pauline Horsley said.

In years past, inmates from the Jessamine County Detention Center did much of the mowing, but commissioner Andy Williams said the city elected to bid out the work because the inmate labor pool was dwindling.

"They're letting quite a few of them out, and we're just not getting that quality that we were getting before," Williams said. "It's not that we can't get them; it just takes longer to get them."

Williams said he and cemetery supervisor James Hubbard looked at contracting out the work versus hiring additional city employees.

"The bid for contracting for mowing is cheaper versus us hiring more employees for the city," Williams said.

By contracting out the work, it saves the city $100,000, which includes salary, insurance and other considerations such as workers compensation.

Williams said the contract allows for each party to opt out with a 30-day notice, if needed.

"There is a clause that states if something happens during mowing season, that if James or someone from the city is not comfortable with what is being done, we can terminate the agreement," Williams said.

The typical mowing season runs from mid-April through October, Hubbard said. Curry will only be paid for work performed; if the weather turns dry and mowing isn't needed, then the city is not obligated to pay for the weeks when no mowing took place.

Hubbard said the mowing would take place either on Tuesdays or Wednesdays, but if there are weeks where it is raining on those days, the schedule can be adjusted.

West High ceiling to be replaced over the summer

By Jonathan Kleppinger
jkleppinger@jessaminejournal.com

“Unusual” installation of ceiling tiles at West Jessamine High School’s gymnasium nearly 20 years ago has caused loose panels in a ceiling that needs to be replaced, an architect told the school board Monday.

One loose ceiling panel in the gym drew the district’s attention in late December. Architect Margie Jacobs of Tate Hill Jacobs told the Jessamine County Board of Education at a special meeting Monday that roughly 70 percent of that 4-foot-by-8-foot panel was unsupported.

“We estimated that it was close to 170 pounds of stuff that would be coming down if it were to fall,” Jacobs said.

There was no water damage and the problem was with only the ceiling tiles and not the roof, Jacobs said. But as repairs were done on the collapsing tile, it became clear that other panels also needed to be replaced.

“The manufacturer that I spoke with said that these panels were never designed to support their own weight for these spans,” Jacobs said. “It’s visible;

Tectum ceiling tiles in West Jessamine High School’s gymnasium have begun to sag due to inadequate support, architect Margie Jacobs told the Jessamine County Board of Education on Monday. The ceiling is set to be replaced with spray insulation over the summer.

they’re all sagging and deformed ... They are not mechanically fastened; they are literally just resting on some steel angles that are very thin, and so as they deform, they are slipping out.

The Tectum panels were installed in 1994 after a tornado damaged the gymnasium in what was then Jessamine County High School. Jacobs said the material was very common in gyms and that the error appeared to have been in the “unusual” manner it was installed and not in the product itself.

“It’s not the panel — it’s because it was not installed with adequate support,” she said.

The board approved the BG-3

— the statement of probable cost and the associated contract documents — for the project at Monday’s meeting with an estimated cost of $70,880, less than initially projected due to a decision to use spray insulation to replace the ceiling instead of similar panels.

“Great acoustics, great thermal — we weren’t going to get any thermal-improvement benefit from the Tectum,” Jacobs said. “We will get both acoustic and thermal benefits from the spray cellulose, and it’s much less expensive.”

With pending paperwork and bidding and school still in session, the work would likely not begin by June 1, Jacobs said, and could take between three and four weeks. She said she did not believe there was any immediate danger to students in the gym, noting that the panel that had begun to sag had shown warning signs and not fallen immediately.

“Unless we have a tornado, unless the building is somehow moved or somebody throws something on the panel — I think that it would have to sustain some type of impact for an entire panel to be dislodged and immediately fall,” Jacobs said.

West Jessamine defeated rival East Jessamine 6-2 Tuesday night with the help of a grand slam by senior Michael Oaks and a rare triple play.

The Colts (10-1), riding a seven-game win streak, came out a little cold, and Jags (3-9) pitcher Orion Howard took full advantage, forcing four of the first eight batters he faced to fly out.

West Jessamine coach Jody Hamilton expected a slow start from his team. During spring break, the Colts were playing in perfect 80-degree weather. The temperature Tuesday night was in the 40s at East Jessamine High School. He's also noticed that his teams are "notoriously slow coming out of Florida."

"The first couple of innings, we didn't run well; we didn't do some things well, and give credit to (Howard). I thought he did a heck of a job keeping us off balance,"

Hamilton said.

"(Howard) competed his tail off," East Jessamine coach Kevin Clary said. "I'm so proud of him. He kept the ball down and he was really good tonight. He kept us in the game and gave us a great chance to win."

When West did get runners on base, East complicated stealing by throwing out Troy Merida in the top of the first.

East was able to get some offense going in the bottom of the third inning as Billy Russell led off the frame with a single to centerfield and Sam Hall followed with a single to left.

What happened next was a 10,000-to-1 shot.

Forrest Baldwin hit a soft line drive to third baseman Christian Beckley who caught the ball for the first out, threw to second baseman Troy Merida for the second out, and Merida fired the ball over to Tyler Pasch at first just ahead of a diving Hall for the third out and a 5-4-3 triple play.

"I think that kind of woke us up and kicked some momentum our way," Hamilton said. "It wasn't looking good there ... You don't see (a triple play) that often, but it was a big time to have one."

The play ignited the Colts and took all the wind out of the Jaguars, who would not get another runner on base until the sixth inning.

"(The triple play) was ridiculous," Clary said. "That just sucked all the life out of us. We had first and second, no outs and our No. 3 hitter up ... we had two sophomores on the bases, and they made a sophomore mistake. We just talked about it the pitch before, 'Freeze on a line drive, go on the ground.' They just made a young mistake and just sucked the life out of us."

Fresh out of the jam in the third inning, Beckley drew a leadoff walk to up the fourth. Pasch singled to right-centerfield to put two runners on.

A6: BASEBALL

Oaks doubled down the left-field line to put West on the board 1-0.

Back-to-back singles by Troy Merida and Dalton James and Beckley getting hit by a pitch loaded the bases with one out in the top of the fifth for West.

East opted for a pitching change and brought in Jacob Burnight.

Burnight walked the first hitter he faced, Pasch, on four pitches to force in a run and make the score 2-0.

Oaks came through for West again, this time with a deep blast to left-centerfield that cleared the wall for a grand slam.

“(The grand slam) really put it out of reach and was a big blow,” Hamilton said. “You could hear the air go out of them.”

The homer put West up 6-0, and East was able to get out of the inning without surrendering any more runs.

“They took advantage of our mistakes,” Clary said.

As good as Oaks’ hitting was against the Jags, Hamilton was almost more impressed with his work behind the plate. Oaks kept the ball in front of him all night and kept all three West pitchers settled.

West made a change on the hill in the bottom of the fifth, replacing Matt Yeich with Zach Settle. Settle got to work right away, striking out the side.

In the top of the sixth, Troy Merida was thrown out stealing second base for a second time.

East was finally able to string some hits together in the bottom of the sixth. With two outs, Baldwin singled to get on base and Kyle Peel followed with a hit to right field that moved Baldwin to third base.

With runners on the corners, an infield single by Jacob Overstreet got East on the board 6-1, and Conner Lindsay doubled to right field to make it 6-2.

Clary thought his team hit the ball OK; he just wished those hits hadn’t been so spread out and then they would have led to more runs.

“Our offense is coming together; we just need to get more hits back-to-back ... but

The Commonwealth Soccer Club 01 Girls Gold team finished the Vulcan Cup Tournament as finalist March 10 and 11 in Birmingham, Ala. The Vulcan Cup is a highly ranked national tournament and one of the toughest tournaments offered in Region 3 during the spring season. The girls played two top-ranked teams from Georgia, a top-five team from Alabama, and a top-five team from Mississippi.

Volleyball program in third season

PHOTO SUBMITTED
The East Jessamine Middle School Intramural Volleyball League is going strong again. This season, the league has eight teams with 64 total girls, learning and having fun playing volleyball. The league is in its third year, and sign-ups had to be closed after two days once it hit the maximum number of players. The league is run by coach Steve Schweitzer and the East Jessamine High School volleyball program.

Meyer wins match-play tournament

West Jessamine freshman Fred Allen Meyer won the Musselman-Dunne Golf Tour (MDGT)/KIA Match Play Championship at Seneca Golf Course in Louisville in March.

The four-day tournament was split over two weekends.

Meyer, the No. 2 seed, defeated his first-round opponent, Breck Stodghill, 2 and 1.

He then defeated Will Boyd 4 and 2 in the second round to advance to the quarterfinals.

In Meyer's quarterfinal round against Jeff Meade, Meyer won 1 up after 19 holes to make the semis.

Meyer crushed Taylor Thompson 7 and 5 in the semifinals to advance to the championship against No. 1 seed Tyler McDaniel. Meyer eagled the par-5 15th to take control of the match and win 2 and 1.

Ross selected to all-American team

Nora Ross of Wilmore has been selected to the 2012 women's all-American trapshooting team, the Amature Trapshooting Association (ATA) said last month in a press release.

At the Grand American last August, Ross won the top ladies' trophies in two singles events, and during the Kentucky State Shoot, she led the women's ranks in the championship singles, all-around and high-overall.

She earned additional points toward the all-American team selection while competing at tournaments in Ohio, including the state shoot.

To be considered for the all-American team, Ross had to meet a minimum target requirement, and she had to have competed in at least three states. Selection was made based on points the shooter accumulated while winning trophies and posting high scores at tournaments throughout the country during the 2011 ATA target year.

Pasch signs with Mount St. Joseph

West Jessamine baseball first-baseman Tyler Pasch has signed with College of Mount St. Joseph.

Mount St. Joseph announced the signing in a press release last month.

Pasch, who bats right and throws right-handed, has played numerous positions for his high-school team, including pitching last season.

Pasch transferred from Lexington Catholic to West Jessamine for his senior season.

Tyler, the son of Phyllis and Eric Pasch, hopes to major in business and marketing at the Mount.

The College of Mount St. Joseph, located in Cincinnati, Ohio, is in the NCAA Division III and is a member of the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference. The Lions' head coach is Chuck Murray.

New policy would eliminate titles of valedictorian, salutatorian

The Jessamine County Board of Education will consider doing away with ranking graduating seniors at its April meeting, possibly changing the requirements in time for the class of 2014.

The school district's current policy assigns class rank to students based on quality points, which accumulate with each class taken. The new policy would eliminate the tabulation of class rank and institute the Latin honor system for graduates that is based on grade-point average (GPA).

Parent Brent Seales started the discussion when he suggested at a May 2011 board meeting that the GPA was a fairer metric to use than the quality-point system, which deputy superintendent Owens Saylor said earlier this year was causing students to “play games” to earn higher ranks while taking easier classes. The quality-point system was first used for the class of 2008.

After discussions with principals and students, Saylor hosted a parent forum in January to gain feedback on instituting the change to a GPA ranking for the class of 2016. Seales questioned at that meeting why class ranking was necessary at all since many colleges don't require it, and he asked why the changes could not go into effect for the class of 2014, whose current sophomore population has not been ranked at all yet.

Jimmy Adams, director of secondary schools, had visited the high schools and found that juniors and seniors were in favor of keeping the current quality-point system while freshmen and sophomores showed no preference, Saylor said. "Why should we make those kids operate under that system if it's not really that big of an impact and we have a system that we like better?" Saylor said. "To keep it in place with four years would seem to be a little counterproductive at this point."

Saylor presented a proposed policy to the board Monday with both those changes. Under that policy, beginning with the class of 2014, valedictorians and salutatorians would no longer be recognized. Those with GPAs of 4.1 or higher would be recognized as summa cum laude, with those 3.75 or higher announced as magna cum laude and those 3.5 or higher announced as cum laude.

Officials at East and West Jessamine high schools were "strongly wishing" to do away with the labels of valedictorian and salutatorian, Saylor said.

"The Latin honors is just more democratic," superintendent Lu Young said, "because anybody who falls in that top category would be recognized, so it wouldn't be singling out a student from that group."

All graduates would be seated and announced alphabetically under the proposed policy, a practice already partially in place at West Jessamine High School, Saylor said.

No board members raised any objections to Saylor's presentation Monday night. Saylor said the policy would be presented to the board for a first reading at its April 30 meeting, and with approval could see a second reading at the May meeting and be in place for the class of 2014 at the beginning of the next school year.

over the Louisville Cardinals a week earlier.

"I think I may have ruined my daughter forever if her first UK game is going to be a national championship," Fitch said. "But I'm happy to have made it back in time."

Centennial Park was packed with children and their families taking photos with the Easter Bunny and snacking on the assortment of chocolates and candies they foraged from grass near the pavilion.

There were also 15 specialty eggs that when found, were traded in for big baskets full of all sorts of Easter fare.

"This will be Chase's final Easter-egg hunt out here, so we're very excited about that, but it's also a little sad," Heather LaBarbara said. "Of course they wanted to meet the Easter Bunny, and this is a good way to get ready for tomorrow."

A teacher at West Jessamine Middle School, LaBarbara was out Saturday with her two sons and husband Matt but said they would also host another hunt at their home on Sunday that would leave her family with enough candy to last until Halloween.

Kentucky offers partnership grants

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Workforce Investment Board (KWIB) is now accepting proposals for grants ranging from $5,000 to $65,000 each to encourage employers to foster and promote the use of industry-led state or regionally defined sector-focused partnerships. The deadline for the request for the proposals is May 15.

"The commonwealth wants to support the development of industry partnerships that meet the needs of the businesses in emerging growth sectors and provides our citizens with vibrant career opportunities and a better quality of life," said Beth Brinly, commissioner of the Department of Workforce Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

These planning grants, totaling more than $300,000, will be awarded to industry partnerships that are composed of a consortium of employer representatives, and where possible, employee associations, organized labor and representatives from the workforce.

Industry partnership applications must specify a state or regionally targeted sector. The sectors include: automobile, aircraft, advanced and/or sustainable manufacturing; transportation, distribution and logistics; business services and research and development; health care/social assistance; ener-

Spinning a good yarn

New Nicholasville business serves all and sundry fabric creators

By Benjamin S. Rossi
brossi@jessaminejournal.com

A Tangled Yarn is a fairly new specialty shop in the process of opening with the goal of weaving together a community of knitters and spinners unlike ever before in Nicholasville.

"Everyone is invited and welcome," owner and long-time knitter Stephanie Stratton said. "Everyone — knitters, crocheters, felters and spinners."

The new business is the little red barn located at 605 N. Main St. right behind Tickled Pink on High Street.

The quaint shop specializes in all the knit, spin, crochet, felt and fiber arts one might need, Stratton said. She has even started one-on-one lessons for beginners interested in the craft and said there are plans to have group workshops in the near future.

"The doors are open from noon to 6 p.m. on weekdays and noon to 4 p.m. on Saturday," Stratton said. "Everyone should come by and see what it's about."

Upon entering the cozy business, the first thing to notice, beyond the alluring incense, is the walls are lined with every color of yarn available, along with the books and tools needed to complete almost any knitting project.

All of the merchandise is protected by a large but friendly gray cat named Fred who watches over the yarns and customers.

Stratton said she is opening her shop for several reasons, the most important being the need for a knitting shop in Nicholasville.

"Nicholasville needed a yarn shop," Stratton said. "We have a lot of knitters and a lot of crocheters, but we didn't have any place for them to come and spin and knit and find good yarns."

Stratton first got interested in knitting in 1997. On a plane ride home from Scotland, the passenger sitting next to her was knitting, and she just fell in love. As soon as she got home, she said she just started knitting and hasn't stopped since.

Stratton eventually started in the business by dying and selling yarn out of her home on her website, LunabudKnit.com, in 2007. The unique name comes from a combination of two of her dogs who have since passed away.

Originally, it was just a way for her to pay for her knitting passion that soon blossomed into something much bigger. It wasn't long before she started traveling to shows all over Kentucky and even out of state to sell her wares.

"The shows are a lot of fun," she said, "but a lot of work, which is another reason to open up here."

It may be a small shop, but it has big ambitions and has teamed up with Sarabees Little Yarn Shop in Winchester in an effort to create multiple afghans to send out to people devastated by tornadoes — not only in Kentucky but also Indiana and Tennessee.

The pairing started the Love Squares Project and posted the call on Facebook to all knitters for 7-inch-by-9-inch acrylic knit or crochet blocks that the two businesses will piece together to make afghans.

So far, dozens of squares of all different colors from all across the county have come in, and they've already began making several afghans. If people still want to help but don't know how to knit, they can also donate $2 for the yarn to make a square.

"It's a project that won't just end with tornado victims," Stratton said. "We hope to keep it going for anyone who needs warmth and a little extra love."

Mane Attractions offers full-service hair grooming

Mane Attractions co-owner Kristy Howell cut the hair of customer Christy Wise last month at the Main Street location that opened June 2011.

By Mike Moore
mmoore@jessaminejournal.com

From haircuts to massages, Mane Attractions, located at 120 N. Main St., is a one-stop shop for hair grooming needs, according to co-owner Kristy Howell.

"Most of the (chain) places, they train you the way that want it done, and they're timed; you have to have those haircuts done in certain amount of time," Howell said. "Not every hairdresser takes the same amount of time. To me, if it takes 40 minutes to do a haircut, take 40 minutes to do the haircut, so that way, you know that you are doing it right."

The shop opened in June 2011. One of just a handful of businesses located in downtown Nicholasville, business at Mane Attractions has been steady, Howell said.

"It has been good; it's been a blessing, and I'm not going to complain," she said. "I think the (sidewalk) construction slowed us down a little bit, but we're doing OK."

"It's like everything else; it's hit or miss. There are days that we really boom and days where it is slow and we'd give anything for anybody to walk in here by mistake."

Repeat customers are the lion's share of business, co-owner Janie Dailey said. She added that establishing relationships with customers is vital.

"We have a rapport with all of our clients that come in here," she said. "I'll sit and cut up with (Howell's) clients and (hairdresser Alysia Ginn's) clients; we are truly family here, and our clients are our family, too. They're not just dollars that are coming in here."

Other services offered by Mane Attractions include massages and spray tans.

Dailey said prices are competitive for all services.

"I feel like we give the community, with this setting, an upscale feel, but we still cater to the working class," she said. "Our prices are not skyrocketed so high that the average Joe can't come in here and receive great service."

Women's haircuts are $25; men's haircuts are $15. In addition, colors start at $60, with highlights starting at $55.

Mane Attractions has a licensed massage therapist by appointment only. Costs are $30 for a half-hour, $60 for a full hour and $80 for an hour and a half. Spray tans are $20 per session.

Military and public-safety personnel receive a 10-percent discount with proper identification. In addition, Mane Attractions has a Facebook page, and the business draws names from its "friends," and those people receive free or discounted service.

School wars over religion reignite

Contrary to culture-war mythology, God is alive and well in many, if not most, public schools.

Visit almost any school in America and you'll find students sharing their faith, reading their scriptures, saying grace before lunch and, in high schools, meeting in religious clubs.

But in a growing number of state legislatures around the country, lawmakers want more. Barred by the U.S. Supreme Court from turning the clock back to the days of state-sponsored prayers and devotional Bible reading, state legislatures are discovering creative new ways to get more religion through the school-house door.

Last week, Florida Gov. Rick Scott signed a law encouraging local school boards to create a forum at school-sponsored events for students to offer inspirational messages. Although the state can't require students to give a prayer, critics of the legislation say "inspirational message" is a euphemism for prayer and student-government leaders charged with deciding who speaks will inevitably favor the majority faith.

CHARLES HAYNES

Texas passed the first of what opponents dub "prayer bills" in 2006. Other state legislatures, including Oklahoma and Tennessee, are currently debating similar legislation.

Creating a "free speech" forum at school events may indeed be constitutional, but lower courts remain divided on where to draw the line on student speech before a captive audience.

Beyond the murky legal issues, giving control of the microphone to student speakers strikes many school administrators as a risky business. Get ready for conflicts and lawsuits when some students offer Christian prayers, others pray Muslim, Wiccan or fill-in-the-blank prayers, and still others speak out for atheism.

Meanwhile in Arizona, lawmakers in the state House voted in February for a "Bible bill" designed to encourage schools to set up Bible courses (it's now before the state Senate). Although public schools in most states can offer Bible electives now, some legislators want to provide state support and incentives to encourage more such courses.

Georgia, Texas, Tennessee and South Carolina already have "Bible bills" — and other Bible Belt states are likely to follow suit.

Bible literature and history can (and should) be part of the public-school curriculum — but only if the material is taught objectively using scholarly materials. Most of the Bible bills, however, give little or no guidance on what safeguards schools should put in place to ensure that Bible courses are academic, not devotional. And little provision is made to prepare teachers or to provide scholarly resources for teaching about the Bible.

A proliferation of Bible courses in public schools, taught by unqualified teachers using the Bible as a history textbook, will be a boon for lawyers — but a legal quagmire for school officials.

Prayer and Bible bills are part of a larger legislative effort by many conservative Christian groups and lawmakers to reverse what they see as a secularization of American schools and society that is hostile to (their) religion.

Religiously motivated opponents of evolution, for example, are pushing hard in many states for legislation that would require teaching the "strengths and weaknesses" of evolution and other topics they deem "controversial" in science. Louisiana passed such a bill in 2008. A similar bill was enacted by the Tennessee legislature last month and awaits the governor's signature.

Critics of these bills charge that this nationwide effort to change science education is another attempt by the Christian Right to undermine teaching the well-established theory of evolution — and a back-door way to promote religious views as science in public schools. Supporters counter that opening the science curriculum to other views promotes critical thinking.

It's worth recalling that over the past two decades, groups on the left and right managed to reach consensus on a range of issues, from the importance of teaching about religion to the necessity of protecting student religious-liberty rights.

But now groups on all sides are gearing up for new conflicts generated by state legislation that goes beyond the consensus by encouraging prayers at school-sponsored events, promoting problematic Bible courses, and sparking new debates over science education.

Welcome to the latest chapter in the long struggle over the role of religion in schools — an argument that dates to the founding of public education more than 150 years ago.

In the spirit of the times, let's call it school wars 4.0.

Surfing the Web for 1,400 tons of garbage

"At the beginning of 2010, a landfill contained 1,400 tons of solid waste. The increasing function W models the total amount of solid waste stored at the landfill. Planners estimate that W will satisfy the differential equation (insert equation here) for the next 20 years."

Whew. That question from the 2011 AP calculus test would have had my head spinning. When I merely looked at the numbers, mathematical signs, and letters representing integers, I had an unpleasant flashback to college, when attempting calculus made me change my major.

All my discomfort is the fault of the Jessamine County Fiscal Court. It is footing the bill for the recent county-wide cleanup, in which officials estimate that 1,400 tons of trash will have been discarded by residents. I stared at the number for a few minutes, trying to wrap my mind around how much rubbish is represented in that number.

My friend the Internet search sprang immediately to mind. I deftly entered "1,400 tons" in the search bar, being sure to use the quotation marks to bring about the most satisfactory results. To my amazement, two of the first six hits were about Jessamine County's cleanup efforts. I must confess a little pride coupled with the embarrassment about being known for a huge amount of trash.

I, for one, managed somehow to hang on to all of my garbage in spite of friendly signs urging me to discard it for free. "One man's trash is another man's treasure," says the old proverb, and I seem to have trouble at certain times determining which is which. Thus, I still cannot park my car in the garage in spite of the fiscal court's largesse. After all, one mere letter distinguishes the garage from garbage anyway.

On a different note, I had to be thankful that we were not first on the Internet search list.

RHONDA DRAGOMIR
JOURNAL COLUMNIST

That distinction went to Branson, Mo. An April 3 article reports that 1,400 tons is the estimated amount of debris removed by cleanup crews following the tornado that struck there on Leap Day earlier this year. Thankfully, the debris we discarded did not represent homes and possessions we would prefer to have kept. At least I hope not.

Still, the sixth hit was the calculus problem. As I pondered the fate of that 1,400 tons in a landfill, other questions arose. The College Board was asking students to estimate the amount the landfill would contain after three months and then to determine whether it was an over- or underestimate, and the long-term projections for waste containment over the next 20 years.

I had never stopped to consider that solid-waste engineers needed to know calculus. Page two of the document was even more disconcerting. At the top in capital letters were the words, "no calculator permitted." Handwritten columns of numeric gibberish followed, or at least that's what my math-challenged brain saw.

Bravado made me at least try to understand how the calculus equations worked. Finally, I abandoned hope that I could figure it out and decided I would need to rely on the savvy pencils of our trusted county officials. Maybe the College Board will let them use calculators.

But I will still admit a little relief when I returned to the original Jessamine Journal article and discovered the garbage is on its way to a landfill in Irvine. Thank goodness, and good riddance.

Letter to the editor

Mayor too quick to pat himself on back

It must be re-election time in Nicholasville. I saw the mayor's editorial patting himself on the back for the downtown work.

He failed to mention at most council meetings, the questions and complaints about how the job was being done, all queries were referred The Allen Company, as they had all the rights, and the residents who had to suffer through a year of car-damaging roads and the businesses that went out of business had none.

I hope when elections come again the residents of Nicholasville will remember the mayor and councilpersons who put us through that fiasco for so little payback.

William Aldridge,
Nicholasville

Something has happened to my vocabulary

For some time, I have made it a point to make sure to speak as clearly and as concisely as I can.

Rarely will you hear me say, "I'm fixin' to make dinner," and I do my best to avoid the word "towards." Why? Simple: to "fix" something, implies to me to repair, and there is no "s" on toward.

But over the course of the last eight weeks, I've noticed my vocabulary changing, not so much at work, but at home.

I find myself using terms such as, "Do you have a poopie

MIKE MOORE
JOURNAL EDITOR

diapie?" and, "Did you toot?"

Strange. I really didn't see that coming, but I've learned when it comes to a certain 8-week-old little girl, my rules of speech are out the window.

Though I'm only eight weeks into it, "Dadhood" is proving to be a huge blessing in my life. And now that my little "Rebecca-boo" (Oh yes, I did go there) is becoming more interactive, I'm finding myself using terms — and often making up terms — to communicate with her.

The joys of Dadhood are many. I just hope I don't bring my relaxed vocabulary to work. It would be extremely awkward to look at my sports editor, Jon Stark, and say, "You're fussy; do you need to be burped?"

And finally, a quick note to our readers. Do you have a "Man-Cave"?

If so, The Jessamine Journal is planning a "Man-Cave" series on its Neighbors page in June. If you think your "Cave" has what it takes, send us a one-paragraph summary and a snapshot of your "Man-Cave." The Journal staff will collect submissions until 5 p.m. May 1. E-mail submissions to news@jessaminejournal.com with the subject line "Man-Cave."

With that said, "Bye-bye, my little reader-poops."

A1: ARRESTS

Anderson was also charged with possession of marijuana after police searched him.

A white Ford Explorer that was parked in front of KOI also fled the scene when officers arrived, the police report states.

The vehicle was found around 3:30 a.m. at the Speedway gas station on North Main Street, where the third suspect and alleged driver, Keyosha T. Conway, was arrested.

Conway, 21, was mirandized and told police they were at KOI because her boyfriend and his accomplice wanted a "lick," the report states.

Police state they also found a cellophane bag of Xanax, a baggie of marijuana and a large amount of cash in $1 bills on Conway.

In the SUV, officers recovered "other paraphernalia" and tools used to cause severe damage to the soda machine along with loose change in the front seat.

Conway was charged with first-degree criminal mischief, fleeing or evading police, third-degree trafficking in a controlled substance and possession of marijuana.

KOI Auto Parts store manager Robby Parks said Monday there was "very expensive damage" done to the brand-new soda machine but that there was no damage to entry points of the business that he had noticed.

"From what I gather, the police were driving by and caught them in the act," Parks said. "The alarm didn't even go off, so I don't know if they were trying to break into the building or not. I can't say at this point what we'll pursue as far as charges go either."

Currently, the suspects are housed in the Jessamine County Detention Center on $1,000 full-cash bonds and scheduled to appear in court at 2 p.m. April 16.

Milans appointed to board

Gov. Steve Beshear has appointed Kathleen J. Milans to the Kentucky Board Certification of Fee-Based Pastoral Counselors to serve for the remainder of the unexpired term ending Sept. 22, 2013. Milans, of Wilmore, is a pastoral counselor at Path of Life Ministry. She represents pastoral counselors. The appointment replaces Joan L. Clagett, who has resigned.

Lexington man charged with indecent exposure

Nicholasville police arrested a Lexington man and charged him with second-degree indecent exposure.

The incident allegedly occurred just after midnight Tuesday, April 3, when officer Gil Rendon came across 19-year-old Preston K. Turner, of 720 S. Main St. No. 2 in Lexington, near the intersection of Beauford Place and Main Street.

"I observed (the) above subject expose his buttocks and genital area (from behind) toward traffic on Main Street," Rendon wrote in the arrest citation.

Turner is scheduled to appear in Jessamine District Court at 9 a.m. Wednesday, April 18.

Wilmore looking for volunteer firefighters

Anyone interested in protecting and serving the community of Wilmore is welcome to come out Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Wilmore United Methodist Church in the parking lot, fire chief Jimmy Powers said.

The fire department is hosting a recruitment rally and looking for 10 to 15 Wilmore residents to answer the call.

"They need to be dedicated, ready to help and able to work well with others," Power said. "It's also very rewarding."

The life of a volunteer firefighter is not an easy one and recruits should have a supportive family before deciding to join with the Wilmore department, Powers said.

Powers said that he has some volunteers who have worked with other fire departments and also new recruits who eventually move on to larger cities after the high-quality training they receive through the Wilmore department.

For additional information, call the fire station at 859-858-3222.

A1: DISTRICTS

for the nearly 33,000 voters of Jessamine County.

"I don't think (the change) will be a hassle for most voters, but it was a hassle for us," deputy clerk Buddy Teater said in a joking manner. "But really I don't think it'll be a problem for voters; we made it convenient for all the voters to get to a booth in their precinct."

The largest precinct is South Brook, which is based at the county fire station located at 1310 S. Main St. and is capable of handling 1,348 voters.

Two of the smallest precincts are D109, which will be open for just one voter, and D108 with only two.

Both precincts are tiny slices of land off Wilmore Road and Jessamine Station Road, but according to state law, each has to be equipped with two electronic voting booths, one of which must be accessible for handicapped voters.

Despite the law also stating that there need to be four precinct officers stationed between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. to man the voting booths, McDaniel said her staff has found a way that will allow for the single voter in precinct D108 to sign in at another area and then return to vote in his own precinct.

In May, there may be as many as 88 electronic booths throughout the county, possibly more, McDaniel said.

The cost of manning the voting booths plus the five new ones recently approved for purchase by the Jessamine County Fiscal Court is yet to be determined she said, but the election staff is in the process of calculating it.

"Our next job is getting people in the right precinct," McDaniel said. "The plan is to let everyone know if their precinct has been moved by sending out cards to let voters know by April 22. If we don't send out a card, then your precinct hasn't changed."

The deadline to register to vote for the 2012 primary election is April 23.

The primary election will take place May 22; the general election is Nov. 6.

McDaniel said that her staff members are ready for the upcoming elections and are glad to have the redistricting part of their job completed.

been recovered.

Nicholasville police Sgt. Scott Harvey said the day care alerted authorities about two weeks ago and the investigation wrapped up quickly.

"It didn't take an awful long time," Harvey said. "She worked the front desk, but she also managed the bookkeeping. Over the course of those years, it added up. When the day care started struggling financially, that's when they started looking into it and got us involved, and we were able to figure out where the money was going because things weren't adding up."

If convicted of the Class C felony, Sandlin could face 5-10 years on each count.

Viola Sewell, owner of the day care, said she could not comment about the case.

"I have turned over all evidence to (Nicholasville police)," she said.

Sandlin was booked into the Jessamine County Detention Center, where she later bonded out.

Sandlin appeared before District Judge Bill Oliver at 2 p.m. Monday, when her case was referred to a Jessamine County grand jury. A date for the grand jury hearing has not yet been set.

A1: RAPE

according to the arrest citation.

According to the citation, Jessamine County sheriff's deputy Daniel Schlernitzauer was flagged down by the alleged victim, "who reported that she had just been raped by (Jones)."

At that time, Jones was driving away from Schlernitzauer, and Hagen initiated a traffic stop.

During the stop, a revolver with three shells in the cylinder was found in Jones' possession, according to the citation.

According to the citation, the victim said Jones held a gun to her head and forced her to have intercourse with him on the hood of his vehicle at the back of Brannon Crossing.

Jones told police the sex was consensual.

As Jones was being booked into the Jessamine County Detention Center, jail deputies discovered three "white rocks" in his pocket, according to the citation.

In addition to the rape charge, Jones faces charges of possession of a firearm by a convicted felon and first-degree possession of a controlled substance (cocaine).

He was arraigned in Jessamine District Court at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, when he was appointed a public defender. Jones is scheduled to appear in circuit court Monday, April 16, at 2 p.m. for a preliminary hearing.

An informational meeting to provide program overview, technical assistance and opportunities for potential applicants to ask questions is tentatively scheduled for the week of April 16. Notification will be posted on the KWIB website.

This request for proposals represents the second of two KWIB planning grant opportunities for industry partnerships. Successful recipients from the first-round announcement, awarded in December 2011, were Northwest Kentucky Training Consortium (NKTC): Strengthening Partnerships and Sustainability; Bluegrass: Partnering Healthcare Initiative for Tomorrow; and Northern Kentucky Industrial Park Association.

The long-term goal of industry partnerships is to create an infrastructure that will provide employer-led training and education that enhances the skills of incumbent workers and develops career pathways for the emerging workforce.

February jobless rates down in 111 counties

FRANKFORT — Unemployment rates fell in 111 Kentucky counties between February 2011 and February 2012, while nine county rates increased, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development

Cabinet. Woodford County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the commonwealth at 6.9 percent. It was followed by Fayette County, 7.1 percent; Oldham County, 7.4 percent; Union and Webster counties, 7.7 percent each; Henderson County, 7.8 percent; Daviess County, 7.9 percent; and Franklin, Madison and Ohio counties, 8 percent each.

Fulton County recorded the state's highest unemployment rate — 18.3 percent. It was followed by Menifee County, 17.3 percent; Magoffin County, 16.5 percent; Jackson County, 16.3 percent; McCreary County, 15.2 percent; Bell, Clay and Wolfe counties, 14.7 percent each; Lewis County, 14.3 percent; and Leslie County, 14.2 percent.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working. Civilian labor-force statistics include non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work. They do not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks. The statistics in this news release are not seasonally adjusted to allow for comparisons between United States, state and county figures.

LBAR announces $65.9 million in Bluegrass real-estate sales for February 2012

Residential real-estate sales by members of the Lexington-Bluegrass Association of Realtors (LBAR) positively impacted the Bluegrass economy in February 2012 with 448 reported sales totaling $65,917,557.

Housing sales continued to climb in February 2012. Positive indicators include increased sales and pending sales, decreasing inventory, fewer days on the market and stable median prices. Single-family residential sales increased an impressive 28 percent over February 2011, from 334 to 426 sales closed. Townhouse/condo sales increased 22 percent for the month with 22 sales reported closed. Residential average days on market declined 28 percent from 139 to 100 days in February.

February 2012 pending sales increased 26 percent from 515 to 650 pending sales reported. The inventory of homes for sale decreased 9 percent for the same time period from 6,273 to 5,694 homes on the market.

“Total lockbox openings increased 11 percent for the month from 13,522 in February 2011 to 14,950 in February 2012,” LBAR President Mary Anne Simmons said. “We don't usually see this kind of buyer enthusiasm in the winter months of January and February. Increased home showings by Realtors usually lead to increased sales and point to growing consumer confidence. February 2012 inventory of homes for sale is the lowest it's been since February 2006. Looking forward to the spring market, Realtors are excited to see how these upbeat trends continue.”

Comparing the year-to-date 2012 to the year-to-date 2011, residential sales increased 22 percent from 665 to 813. Residential average days on market fell 27 percent for the same time period from 137 days to 100 days.

As the region's leading advocate for homeownership, Lexington-Bluegrass Association of Realtors understands the value and joy of owning a home. LBAR represents more than 1,900 Realtors located in Anderson, Bourbon, Clark, Fayette, Franklin, Nicholas, Powell, Scott and Woodford counties. Visit www.lbar.com or call 859-276-3503 for buying and selling resources and real-estate listings.

You haven't filed an income tax report in how long?

Income tax SOS

Alas, spring isn't just the time of year when nature springs to life or when you get to put your boots and parkas away. It is also income tax time. If preparing your income tax return is a real nightmare for you, you should know that there are many resources available that are designed to facilitate this chore.

Tax return software is available in stores and post offices. These allow you to fill out your income tax return on your computer and then send it to the government electronically. The software must, however, be authorized by government authorities.

CALL IN THE EXPERTS

Some income tax software offers telephone help lines, either free or with a charge. Government organizations can also provide you with free tax related assistance over the phone, as well as other services.

GETTING HELP

If you are on a low income, you might be eligible for a community program to have your income tax return done for you. Call the IRS or your local tax preparer to find out if this is the case for you. During income tax time, some organizations and volunteer groups set up free workshops to help people on low incomes complete their own income tax returns.

Tax laws are complex and are constantly changing. If you believe that your tax situation is complicated, perhaps because you are a landlord who receives revenue from rental properties or because you own a small business, entrust your bookkeeping and tax return to professional accountants. They have the expertise to deal with every tax situation and can help you maximize your savings.

52-year Jessamine Co. educator Robin Fain to turn 100 Saturday

By Jonathan Kleppinger
jkleppinger@jessaminejournal.com

A hundred years ago this Saturday night, the Titanic ocean liner hit an iceberg in the Atlantic Ocean on its maiden voyage. That same night, the life of a titanic figure in Jessamine County education began in a country farmhouse.

Robin Fain celebrates her 100th birthday April 14. Friends and family gathered at Royal Manor nursing home last Monday to see Jessamine County Judge-Executive Neal Cassidy present her with a proclamation that Saturday, April 14, would be “Miss Robin Fain Day.”

“I just read the Readers Digest large print on the sinking of the Titanic, and it tried its best to get to New York, but it had to sink in the Atlantic, and there I was in a little four-room house,” Fain said.

As an 18-year-old at Elmwood School, Fain began a teaching career that would span 52 years in Jessamine County. She had attended the same one-room school, completing eight grades in six years, before graduating from Nicholasville High School and spending a year at the University of Kentucky.

Fain recalled memories of her early years teaching as she reminisced — women walking to Elmwood from Sulphur Well for a Christmas production, driving a Model A Ford, bringing home a salary of $75 a month, taking all her students to a funeral of a friend, and even telling the stories of the only two students she ever had to whip.

After six years at Elmwood, the school was discontinued and Fain moved with her students to the two-room Sulphur Well School, where she taught grades one through four. Three years later, then-superintendent Roland Roberts asked Fain to assume the head-teacher post at Little Hickman School, teaching grades five through eight.

By 1956, Fain was teaching English at Wilmore High School, also taking on world-history and library duties. When Nicholasville and Wilmore high schools merged two years later to create Jessamine County High School, Fain became the full-time librarian. When she retired 25 years later, the board of education named the library after her.

Current superintendent Lu Young, a Jessamine County High School graduate, was on hand last Monday and looked through her 1977 yearbook with Fain.

“We all adored her,” Young said. “She loved books and always wanted to talk to us about book. If we were reading something, she had 100 questions for us about what we read.”

Young said her fondest memories were from Beta Club, which Fain sponsored for 32 years. Young said she still remembers lectures about behavior and making memories at Beta Club conventions in Louisville each December.

“Every year, she and her co-sponsor, Mrs. Wilder, would call us all into their room, and they would give us a speech about good comportment and that we needed to know that we were about to make a memory,” Young said. “So every year we would think about the memories we were going to make, and I still think about that now when I take kids around, because I look back fondly on those things so much.”

Cassidy recalled trips Fain had taken with the Jessamine County Beef-Cattle Association 15 years or more ago and told stories of the retired librarian making sure she saved her ice-cream cone when she fell and skinned her knee as well as a time she got separated from the group.

“It was in this great big parking lot in one of the shopping centers, and we were all over the place, and everybody was hunting for Ms. Fain,” Cassidy said. “The bus driver started loading everybody up; we went around, and right in the corner of the parking lot stood this lady. Ms. Fain was out there on the corner — she said she had decided that we couldn’t find her in all that mess, so she got to where the entrance was; you had to go out there.”

Fain will celebrate her birthday Saturday (Miss Robin Fay Day) with family and friends and then be honored at a Jessamine County Retired Teachers Association reception on Wednesday, April 18, from 2:30-4:30 p.m. at Central Bank. The public is invited to that event.

Editor’s note: Some information was taken from Fain’s personal history in the 1993 book “A History of Jessamine County.”

Parents need to protect kids from drowning dangers

We all know how easy it is for a child to become a victim of carelessness. We are diligent about making sure kids' seat belts are fastened, or that they are in a properly fastened and positioned child car seat. We also don't allow unlocked or loaded guns to be anywhere within reach of our children. We lock up dangerous chemicals and medications; and we teach them to look and listen before crossing a road. How are we, though, when it comes to protecting them from drowning? Results of a recent study reveal:

- A child drowns every five days in a portable "kiddie" pool during the summer months.
- 209 children below the age of 12 years old died in portable pools from 2001 to 2009.
- 94 percent of accidents involved children younger than 5 years old.
- 81 percent of the events took place in the summer.
- Boys accounted for 56 percent of the accidents.
- Drowning is the second-leading cause of injury-related death for children aged 1-14 years old in the U.S.
- Of all preschoolers who drown, 70 percent are in the care of one or both parents.
- Of all preschoolers who drown, 75 percent are missing

MICHAEL HUGHES

from sight for five minutes or less.

- Two-thirds of all drownings occur between May and August.
- Of all drownings, 40 percent occur on weekends.

Some recent statistics on drowning in Kentucky reveal that 36 child fatalities were reported since July 1, 1999. Of those, 15 were in swimming pools; nine were in open-water areas; eight were in bathtubs; and four were in wells, septic lagoons or toilets.

A total of 25 cases were substantiated for neglect by either parents or another caregiver. Of those, 18 involved children 0-5 years of age; four involved children 5-10 years of age; and three involved children 10-18 years of age.

Where and how drowning accidents happen:

- A temporary lapse in supervision is a common factor.
- Often there is no splashing to warn of trouble.

• Bathtubs, buckets, ice chests with melted ice, toilets, hot tubs and spas, wells, fish ponds, fountains, and post holes are a few examples of where a child can drown.

What you can do to help safeguard your child:

- Never leave a young child alone in the bathroom unattended.
- Keep the bathroom door closed and latched.
- Never leave a child alone in a bathtub or in the care of another child, even for a moment.
- Use lockable covers on spas and hot tubs.
- Supervise children closely when they are playing near wells, open post holes or irrigation ditches.
- Properly fence in your pool (at least 4 feet high), and keep it locked when an adult is not supervising it.
- Never allow a child in a boat of any kind without a properly fitting life vest.
- Remove all toys from pool after use to deter temptation to reach for them.
- Learn CPR and know how to get emergency help.

Remember, teaching your child how to swim does not mean your child is safe in water.

Grants available to local horse groups

The Kentucky Equine Education Project (KEEP) recently announced it again will provide funds for Kentucky Horse Organizations and Associations. KEEP created the local funding program as part of its grassroots efforts to help horse organizations around the state. The grants program includes four categories: 4-H and FFA clubs, horse shows and trail rides, equine breed and color-breed associations and educational activities. Each category has a funding limit and specific criteria applicants must meet to be considered.

"We are honored to be able to again assist these organizations throughout the commonwealth in their efforts," said Cara Stewart, KEEP's Field Director. "A portion of monies collected from our donations and membership dues have been set aside for our grassroots committee to use as seed money to help organizations grow their events and programs, and put new programs in place with the common goal of growing Kentucky's horse industry and the state's economy."

For 2012, the KEEP Board of Directors approved grassroots funding in the amount of $20,000. The staff and board are hopeful that future funding will allow enhancement and expansion of KEEP's support for the many equine activities in Kentucky.

Each year, KEEP's grassroots committee, composed of 25 or more individuals from various backgrounds of the horse industry, meets and reviews the current funding applications.

"The goal of the funding is to help start programs for children that would not otherwise have been exposed to a horse, to bring together horse enthusiasts for networking and continuing education opportunities, grow local horse shows that are great economic generators for communities and help breed associations grow their organizations," said Jack Smith, the committee's chairman. "Therefore we are continuing to review and improve our funding application to ensure these goals are met."

"All in all, our grassroots funding program has far exceeded what we ever imagined, and we look forward toward the future growth of this program," Stewart said.

For more information on KEEP's grassroots program, contact the KEEP staff at 866-771-5337 or e-mail info@horseswork.com

KEEP was formed in May 2004 to promote and protect Kentucky's horse industry. For more information on KEEP, visit www.horseswork.com.

Martial-arts group delivers food donations

Members of the leadership teams from Martial Arts USA spent the first day of spring break giving back to the community by delivering food donations to God's Pantry Food Bank. The 15 leadership members participating consisted of elementary- to high-school-age students under the supervision of their instructors and Grandmaster Jeon. Giving of their time is one of the ways Jeon teaches the students teamwork within the school and with the community as a whole. As a team, the school collected more than 740 pounds of nonperishable food over the holidays in their "Yes I Can" food drive. The young students also spent part of the day picking up trash around the Millpond Shopping Center, where their school is located. All students learn the virtues of respect, discipline, perseverance, humility and loyalty as a part of their regular classes, but Jeon believes it is important to provide opportunities such as the food drive so young leaders learn the importance of having a heart for their community's needs and that to be a true leader they must willingly work to meet those needs.

Garden time equals family time

Christian center plans family garden project

By Mike Moore
mmoore@jessaminejournal.com

Preaching from Genesis chapters 2 and 3 Saturday, Tabernacle Baptist Church pastor Lonnie Moore told the 35 people gathered for the organizational meeting of Family Christian Center's family garden that God was the original gardener.

"He walked with Adam in the cool of the day," Moore said, adding that God used a garden as a means of fellowship as he tied his message into the building of a family unit.

Getting back to family is the crux behind the Family Christian Center of Kentucky.

FCC's mission, according to an information sheet, is "We believe a strong country begins with strong, healthy and happy families. A strong family is built on Christian principles from God's word. Through teamwork and a helping hand, we desire to instill in individuals the character, principles and skills necessary to build strong, lasting relationships within their family and with God."

Luba Manyak, president of FCC, said the idea behind the family garden is to bring families together.

"We are quick to bring aid to other countries when there is a need," Manyak said in a letter included in her information packet. "Now it is time that we pour ourselves into helping our own children in our own country to develop in every way that God would ask of them."

The community garden is a springboard effort of FCC's, associate pastor R.J. Morelli said.

"There's many aspects that are going to be involved; it has a kind of a home economics and culinary aspect to get young people and families back to actually cooking and enjoying family meals," he said. "In today's society, it's a lot of fast-food, and families don't even eat together."

The family garden will allow parents and children to work together and they will learn to grow a variety of plants.

"It is designed to give some satisfaction of work accomplishment and to teach them a new trade," Morelli said. "It's designed to teach young people and adults, as well, the skill of gardening and the trade of it."

FCC has about an acre of land that is already tilled and a maneuvered plot for each family.

Manyak said depending on the how many families sign up, plot sizes will be 10 feet-by-20 feet or 20-by-20.

In addition, an extension agent with the Jessamine County Extension Office will educate participants in areas such as soil type, planting and disease control.

Participants will be required to provide their own tools. Seeds, plants, pesticides and chemicals will be available for purchase through FCC for a minimal fee.

Fees include a $10 application fee, $30 to cover cost of plot preparation and a cleaning deposit of $30. The cleaning deposit will be refunded after the final plot inspection at the end of the gardening season.

Manyak and Morelli said the family garden will serve as a springboard for other FCC goals.

"Language is going to be offered, and there are several other things are going to be coming up in the future, but we're starting with the garden," Morelli said.

Future programs FCC wants to offer include music training, foreign languages, and arts and crafts classes.

For more information on the family garden, call Manyk 859-913-0059 or e-mail FCCKentucky@gmail.com.

Cut your Styrofoam use with reusable portable cups

Recently, I have been feeling bad about my impact on the environment through my takeout consumption. I try to buy groceries and eat from home because it creates less waste, costs less and is better for me. But there are times when I don't have time to go home or for some reason I need something convenient and quick.

One thing I do frequently is fill up a cup of something to drink at a local gas station while I'm on my way somewhere. It's very convenient and going home for a drink isn't usually an option, but I was still using a new Styrofoam cup every time I got a drink, which felt wasteful.

I didn't like the fact that because I needed something convenient, I was going to use a Styrofoam cup — which will be around for the rest of my lifetime and beyond — one time and then throw it away.

For me, it isn't that I don't want to bring my own drink; it's that I don't want to slosh my drink out of my open cup all over my car while I'm driving. I've found a pair of solutions for my problem.

Solution number one to my problem was a gift to me from my friends recently for my birthday. They got me a pair of reusable plastic cups complete with screw-on lids and reusable straws. They look basically like to-go cups you would get from a fast-food restaurant, just without the "eco-guilt."

I can fill these cups before I leave home without worrying about spills or contributing to the landfill. Plus, if I need a to-go drink but I've already got a full tank of gas, I don't have to make an extra stop at the gas station and slow my trip down.

AMANDAWHEELER

Solution number two is my gigantic, 64-ounce travel mug I bought recently from the gas station where I get my drinks.

Once you buy the mug, you pay a cheaper price each time for a refill and you don't use up a Styrofoam or plastic cup. You do wind up with a whole lot of drink, but I haven't decided yet if this is a downside. This option comes into play when I'm already out and about and can't go home to fill up my new reusable cups.

One thing I like about my travel mug is that it definitely gets noticed. Whenever someone comments on how large my mug is, I can tell them I am helping to save the environment by reducing my use of plastic and Styrofoam cups.

It really is the little changes you make that can add up to a big difference, and I think these two small changes I've made are really going to have a positive impact on the environment that I can feel good about.

April 17 deadline to file and pay 2011 income taxes

Journal staff report

The Kentucky Department of Revenue (DOR) reminds taxpayers that they will have a few additional days to file their taxes this year.

The 2012 deadline is Tuesday, April 17, due to Emancipation Day, a holiday observed in the District of Columbia, which falls on Monday, April 16. By law, District of Columbia holidays affect tax deadlines in the same way that federal holidays do; therefore, all taxpayers will have two extra days to file or pay any taxes due this year.

All valid six-month extensions filed on or before April 17, 2011, will likewise extend the due date for filing a 2011 calendar year income tax return to Oct. 15, 2012.

DOR encourages taxpayers and tax professionals to take advantage of convenient, safe electronic filing.

Since the beginning of the current tax season, more than 1 million Kentuckians have already filed individual tax returns. Approximately 89 percent of those were filed electronically.

The average time for a refund to be issued on filed paper returns is four to six weeks. A refund request from an electronically filed return, however, is issued within seven to 10 days.

Additionally, taxpayers who owe with their returns and file electronically can request the additional tax due be automatically debited from their bank. Taxpayers can opt to have the tax due debited up to April 17 and avoid interest.

More than 1 million Kentucky taxpayers may be eligible to prepare and file their taxes electronically at no cost thanks to a public-private partnership called the Free File Alliance. To find out if you qualify, visit www.revenue.ky.gov.

All Kentucky income-tax forms are available at www.revenue.ky.gov/forms or by calling 502-564-3658. Forms are also available at any of the 10 DOR field offices throughout the state. A list of field offices is available at www.revenue.ky.gov/aboutus/taxpayerservicecenters.htm.

DOR will honor recently announced Internal Revenue Service (IRS) special tax relief for taxpayers in the presidential disaster areas who were victims of severe storms, tornadoes, straight-line winds and flooding that started on Feb. 29.

As of March 19, President Barack Obama had declared Bath, Campbell, Carroll, Grant, Grayson, Johnson, Kenton, Larue, Laurel, Lawrence, Magoffin, Martin, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan, Ohio, Pendleton, Rowan, Russell, Trimble and Wolfe counties federal disaster areas. Individuals who reside or have a business in these counties may qualify for tax relief.

The IRS is postponing certain tax deadlines for those taxpayers who reside or have a business in the disaster area. For instance, certain deadlines falling on or after Feb. 29, and on or before May 31, have been postponed to May 31, 2012.

This includes an extension of the April 17 deadline for filing 2011 individual income tax returns, making income-tax payments and making 2011 contributions to individual retirement accounts (IRA).

tornado relief in West Liberty. The breakfast will be from 9-11 a.m. Admission is $10 for all-you-can-eat pancakes; waffles, sausage, fruit, juice and coffee will also be available. Students have planned the event as a community-service project.

West student gets perfect ACT score

Kareem H. Omar, son of Hatim and Youlia Omar and a junior at West Jessamine High School, earned a top composite score of 36 on a recent ACT test, not missing any questions in any subject.

Nationally, while the actual number of students earning a composite score of 36 varies from year to year, roughly one-10th of 1 percent receive a top score. Among test-takers in the high-school graduating class of 2011, only 704 of more than 1.6 million students earned a composite score of 36.

The ACT consists of tests in English, mathematics, reading and science. Each test is scored on a scale of 1-36, and a student's composite score is the average of the four test scores. Some students also take ACT's optional writing test, but the score for that test is reported separately and is not included within the ACT composite score.
